the county.

The Estill field is proving a bonanza to those within the producing area, but attempts to widen the field have so far, proved disappointing, several dry holes having been struck, and many operators are more inclined to test a new field than to try any more on the edge of the Estill field. Powell seems, in the opinion of experts, to present ideal condition for successful development. Its geographical situation is perfect and the geological formations are said by the experts who have been here looking over the land, to be excellent, and they confidently look forward to the striking of some good paying wells. It is believed by these men that the best pay sand will be reached at a depth of between 500 and 800 feet, although some of the older wells are shallower.

A well was sunk several years ago on Morris Creek that oil men say would have made a good producer had it been handled right, and this territory will be thoroughly tested by the sinking of several wells. Hatcher's Creek will also come in for a good share of development work as four well were sunk in that neighborhood a number of years according to information received a few days ago by Judge Knox. Representatives from the county will go to Frankfort May 28th, to fight the raise, which seems exorbitant.

Altogether, with the work already contracted and being contemplated, there will be about twenty rigs in operation within ten miles of Clay City within three months, and the large producers have their "scouts" located here to keep an eye on developments, from which much is hoped both by residents of the county and others.
